How the Montevideo Revolt was Put Down.

Fifty-three of the Insurgents Killed and Many Wounded.

The Revolutionists Had Planned the Assassination of the President.

The Plot Frustrated by the Vig-Force.

By Telegraph to The Times. New York, Oct. 18.—[By the Associated Press.] The Herald has a long special from Montevideo about the revolution nipped in the bud there a few days ago. The revolutionists belonged to a club organized for that express pur-pose. They called themselves the "Junta" after the fashion of the Con-gressionalists in Chile. It was confidently expected by them that a large number of soldiers would rally to their ranks. Accordingly, when they left their quarters they proceeded at once to the barracks. There, to their sur-prise, they were taken prisoners. Dr. Pantaleon Perez, their chief, made a bold attempt to escape, but was shot

Two hundred armed revolutionists who had waited outside retired to the National Club and a short time later opened fire upon a battalion of soldiers that happened to pass, wounding three officers. The troops returned the fire with deadly effect. Fifty-three prominent men of the "Junta" were instantly killed. How many were wounded the correspondent could not learn, but he understood that the number was correspondingly large. Panic seized the revolutionists when they saw so many of their comrades lying dead or wounded about them, and they fled precipitately.

Col. Latorre is bitterly denounced by the revolutionists. They charge him with the disastrous result of the outbreak and accuse him of fooling their leaders by pledging the support of the military party.

There see ns not the slightest doubt that the intention of the "Junta" to assassinate President Obes. It had employed twenty Sicilians to commit the crime. These would-be assassins were under the command of an Italian desperado named Abatte. Fortunately the Chief of Police discovered the plot, nd measures were taken to frustrate Four leaders of the "Junta" have been arrested. Troops are on the alert.

The remnants of the revolutionary bands fled to the country where they have organized guerilla bands. Police and troops are after these outlaws, and they will be shown no mercy when caught.

At present, says the correspondent, the revolutionary movement is a failure.

Montevideo, Oct. '8.—In the aprising here recently six men were killed and seven wounded. Fifty-two persons are in custody, and will probably be summarily dealt with. The uprising was quelled, and quiet prevails throughout Uruguay today.

crew A French brig was stranded near Falnouth, where the force of the wind shattered her. No details are learned. A Norwegian vessel, coal-laden, was totally wrecked off Kearley, Ireland. Several, collisions occurred in the Thames and many vessels were driven ashore.

At Birr, Ireland, the gale demolished a circus tent which was crowded with children and many were injured in the stampede that followed.

The area of the storm extends over the whole of England, Ireland and the southern portion of Scotland. A large number of coasters have been lost. The valleys of Severn and Dee are flooded.

At Brighton the pier and esplanade were swept away by tremendous seas. The buge structure which was being prepared for Buffalo Bill's "Wild West" show was utterly destroyed. At Swansea a number of buildings ere unroofed and at York the roof of

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The story of incoming vessels this morning is a repetition of that of yesterday. Chief among the Atlantic steamers to put into port this morning was the Guion-line steamer Alaska. She was overdue sixteen hours. Her trip was a very stormy one, and there was considerable suffering among cabin and steerage passengers from seasickness. The steamers Polynesia and Slavonia arrived this morning. Both sickness. The steamers Polynesia and Slavonia arrived this morning. Both experienced severe storms. There are now several liners overdue, but it is probable that they will reach port all right.

A Startling Version of the Chicago Tragedy.

A Baltimore Woman Says Her Husband Helped to Do the Deed.

She also Declares That Tascott, the Principal, is Dead.

The Much-sought Murderer Strangled by His Partners in the Crime and His Body Made Away With.

By Telegraph to The Times. BALTIMORE, Oct. 13.-[By the Associated Press.] The widow of the late Albert K. Ordway, who committed suicide here last March, was taken to Bay View Asylum today, She has recently asserted her husband was the company ion of William Tascott, the man who is supposed to have murdered millionaire Snell in Chicago a few years ago,

Ordway was a son of a well-known clothier, and she was married to him in 1881. Her husband, she says, soon took to drink, and began to associate with disreputable people. One night he stood before a mirror with a mask on his face, and declared that he was go ing to have money from old man Si or kill the -..... She pleaded with him to renounce his intention, but he per sisted and left the honse in a hurry The next morning he returned with a bloody handkerchief and without shoes When questioned by her he said he had loaned his shoes to Tascott, who had been shot and was lying in the rear of a on on West Madison street.

One of the most important statements in the woman's story is that she knows that Tascott is dead. She says that she knows he was strangled to death and his body made way with by his pals. In that connection she mentioned the names of Funkhouser, Marston and Reynolds. Subsequently to the murder of Snell she says that her husband was continually nervous and always seemed anxious to leave the city, although he was in business with his father. After a great deal of persuasion she agreed to accom. pany him to Baltimore. After they arrived here, she made up her mind to expose the crime, but he induced her not Finally as a result of drink he suicided.

status of the company. Hoey has cluded reporters.

In the meeting Mr. Sanford asked Hoey to resign his position as member of the board of directors, but Hoey flatly refused. He said the directors could put him out of the president, but they could not displace him as a director. It is understood that this will be compared for an application. Sanford, the new president, has been connected with the company forty-five years, and was at one time its general years, and was at one time its general superintendent. Loveloy was for a long time superintendent of the Pennsylvania division of the company. In 1886 he resigned to accept the presidency of the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad, retiring from there two years

GEN. M'COOK'S REPORT.

He Urges the Removal of the Apaches from San Carlos.

Washington, Oct. 13.—{By the Associated Press.} Gen.—McCook, commanding the Department of Arizona, recommends in his annual report to the Secretary of War that the Sans Carlos Indians be removed from their present reservation to some point east as the temperature there in midsummer is 110 degrees in the shade, and to keep Indians and troops there is inhuman. He describes the harbor of San Diego as one of the best in the world but its defenceless condition he considers a discrease. disgrace.

ERIN'S DEAD CHIEF.

T. P. O'Connor's Biography of Parnell Appears.

he McCarthyites will Make No Reply to the Recent Manifesto of the Oppo ing Faction-Mrs. Dickinson Explains.

By Telegraph to The Times. LONDON, Oct. 13.—[By Cable and As-ociated Press.] T. P. O'Connor's 'Life of Parnell" has appeared. It is a book of 223 pages. All previous bi-ographies according to Avondale the honor of Parnell's birth. O'Connor says that he heard Parnell state that this was incorrect and that he was born at Brighton. Among the earliest influences were stories he heard from servants and from his mother hostile to the existing relations of England to Ireland. These made Parnell the man he became. O'Connor traces Parnell's line through, and speaking of his early Parliamentary career says that in the present moments, when the passionate friends of Parnell denounce his opponents as murderers, it is well to recall the fact that Parnell undoubtedly helped to break poor Isaac Butts' heart and hasten his end. The hand that struck him down after the divorce disclosures was his own. Strangely enough, the idea that he would one day ruin himself was familiar to his col-leagues for many years, owing to his hermit life and instances of aberration of mind. O'Connor never regarded Parnell as O'Connor never regarded Parnell as highly intellectual and says he was essentially narrow, and to this narrowness O'Connor attributes the final mistake of his life. When McCarthy before the last momentous meeting in the committee room told Parnell what Glad-stone had said, his reply was to "poo-poo" the whole business as a non-con-formist howl, which would die out if defied. One reason for his attitude was his latent dislike for Englishmen.

The "Countess" on the Witness Stand During the Whole Day.

She Says That She and Benny Passed as Man and Wife.

eir Business and Social Relations De tailed at Length—The Part Taken by the Judge-Another Case In Point.

The Hunsaker embezzlement case again occupied the attention of Justice Owen's department of the Police Court yesterday and the "Countess" was on the stand most of the day. When the case was called at 10 o'clock the "Countess" took the witness stand. She wore a sad, far-away look and it was easy to be seen from the sunken eyes that she slept but little during the night. She is evidently a sick woman and even counsel for the defense showed a disposition during a vigorus cross-examination to be as easy wigorus cross-examination to be as easy with her as possible, and the attorneys for the State guarded her rights at every stage of the proceedings and were ably backed by the Court.

Chafter a few unimportant questions had been asked her, she was withdrawn and A. Hadley of the Southern California National Bank was recalled for the nia National Bank was recalled for the prosecution, and questioned regarding checks signed by Ben and O. W. Hunsaker. Witness could not tell exactly when Ben, whom he knew as Fitzallen Hunsaker, turned his account over to his brother, O. W. Hunsaker.

The Countess was then recalled and the cross-examination began. About the same ground that was gone over the first day of the examination was covered and nothing new was brought out. On the 11th of September she visited Pasadena and registered at the hotel as S. E. Smith. While there she gave Ben $300. She accounted for almost the entire $7500 which she claims was embezzled by Ben, and from her figures all bezzled by Ben, and from her figures all except a few hundred dollars which except a few hundred dollars which were used for their traveling expenses, went in the business, but she could never get a statement from her man-ager lover, and when she wanted the business transferred to her he flatly re-there at all.

Mr. Stephens. Were you not there the day before the Count's trial?

The Countess. No, sir.

Mr. Stephens. Did you at any time during the month of August discuss the advisability of putting the business in O. W. Hunsaker's name?

O. W. Hunsaker's name?

The Countess. No sir, but I would like to retire a few minutes and speak to the District Attorney.

Mr. Stephens. Did you and Ben live together at the Natick House?

The Countess. We did.

Mr. Stephens. How much money did you have when you left for San Fran-cisco on the 10th of August?

The question was objected to by the prosecution, and sustained.

Mr. Stephens. When did you and Ben first talk about going in business in Low Augustes?

Los Angeles?

The Countess. At Coronado. We were just down from Modesto on a pleasure trip, and were at Coronado.

Mr. Stephens. Did be give you the check for $4500 before or after you had this talk? The Countess. I gave him the check before we decided to go in business here.

Mr. Stephens. What did you give him the certificate for?

The Countess. He said he could attend to it better than I.

Mr. Stephens. When did you join Ben at Modesto!
The Countess. In July. His father asked me to go there to meet him, and I went. Ben telegraphed me to come, and said we would go and have a good time together. I made his acquaintance through his father.

Witness and defendant did not discuss witness and defendant did not discuss going to Ogden to go in business, but they talked it over at Coronado.

Witness was then examined to a considerable extent as to when and why she gave defendant the $4500 check.

Mr. Stephens. Did you meet Judge Hunsaker at his office on the 10th of August and did you tell him that you Hunsaker at his office on the 10th of August, and did you tell him that you and Ben were about to take the Carlton Hotel, where a man was killed?

The Countess. No, I did not, but I told him that I was thinking about taking the Carlton. There were several men in the offices and a hanger-on. The old gentleman wanted to know why I did not bring Ben with me, and he wanted me to telegraph for Ben and I told him not to. The old gentleman wanted to get the check for $4500.

The Court finally got control of both witness and attorneys and the examination proceeded.

Mr. Stephens. When you and Ben traveled about together and when you decided to go into business you were on good terms!

Mr. Stephens. Do you know a man who called himself Count Rulohyasbaske! This question was objected to and quite a lengthy argument followed, in which Mr. Stephens stated to the Court that he proposed to show that the Countess became infatuated with the defendant, a mere boy, whom she started off with to have a "good time" as she styles it. She is a woman of the world and has been married several times, and started out to lend this boy away, and everything was smooth until another woman appeared on the scene and caused her to become jealous. Mr. Stephens stated he proposed to show that she married the Count before she obtained a divorce from the man Clark. The objection was sustained.

Mr. Stephens. Who was to get the profits from the saloon?

The Countess. Everything was to come to me for the time being, but as soon as we married then he was to divide the profits with me. At least that was our intention, but it had not been settled.

A Denver dispatch says that it is probable if the alliance between the Denver and Rio Grande and the Anchison, Topeka and Santa Fe shall "re sult in depriving the Burlington of its Colorado business, that that company will soon begin the construction of ex-tensions into the Rocky Mountains. The Burlington is in a situation to do this rapidly. It can, of course, raise all withed.
Witness was asked numerous questions as to conversations she had with certain persons, in which she stated that she was perfectly satisfied with the manner in which Ben was conducting the business, but that she wanted him to take in a partner, so that Ben could be with her more.

Witness depind that she had over the money that may be needed, for its financial condition is excellent. It has already a line surveyed as far as Grand Junction; and if it were thought advisable, it could soon put a force of men at work which would build a road with her more.

Witness denied that she had ever held such conversations. She did not offer to withdraw the charges if he would come back to her and go to some to the western line of the State in a very short time. This projected line very short time. This projected line runs west from Denver up the divide between Raiston Creek and Clear Creek. It crosses the range through a tunnel which has already been located about six miles from James' Peak. After reaching the other side of the mountain it follows one of the tributaries of the Grand to a point on that river a few miles above the town of Hot Sulphur Springs. From that point it follows the Grand River all the way to Grand Junction. Several years ago other place.
Mr. Stephens. Do you know Lulu Clair? Clair?

not without the essentials of a modern melodrama.

Sevier senior was gathered to his forefathers in Visalia about fifteen months ago, and he left five daughters to battle with the world, fortified with bequests valued at about $50,000 in real estate, divided equally between them, and some ready cash. The three older girls soon decided that the ranch, which is at the edge of the city limits, was not a proper place for the unprotected women, and putting their cash together, they bought a house in the heart of Visalia for $1200, and leased the farm for five years to a Mr. Harkins.

Three months after the father's death Benny F. Hunsaker, a drummer for A, L. Bancroft & Oo., arrived in the southern town and paid some little attention to Miss Ada Sevier, the rosy-checked and rather stylish second daughter. His attentions were not unacceptable, but made no lasting impression, Last April Miss. Ada paid a visit to San Francisco, and was one day visit to San Francisco. J. S. town and paid some little attention to Miss Ada Sevier, the rosy-cheeked and rather stylish second daughter. His attentions were not unacceptable, but made no lasting impression, Last April Miss. Ada paid a visit to San Francisco, and was one day accosted on the street by Benny. The acquaintance was renewed, and in time young Hunsaker wooed and won Ada for himself, or rather for her money.

It was after the engagement that the twenty-six-year-old son of "Judge" O. F. Hunsaker developed his bump for business. He advised the girls, so they assert, to sell their ranch in Visalia and have it cut up into town lots, A paper was drawn up by the "Judge" and presented to them to sign, which they did, they say, in the belief that it was merely conferring upon young Hunsaker the power to buy off Harkins' five-year lease. The Misses Sevier did not read the paper because the "Judge" told them that it was only a matter of form. The day after the signing of the document, the last Saturday in June, Benny took Attorney Fred MacGregor with him to Visalia and was away until the following Tuesday, When he returned he told Ada and the others that Harkins was a consumptive and would die anyhow, and that he could not buy him off. A few days later, however, Miss Ada Sevier saw in the Visalia paper the report of a deed of transfer of a three-fifths interest in their ranch to Daniel Canty, proprietor of the Pacific Hotel at Visalia, for $1000. Young Hunsaker is now missing, and the young women think he left the State.

In addition to this, the Misses Sevier say that Benny and his papa worked off a lodging house at No. 721½ Bush street on them in exchange for the house and lott in Visalia. The bright young man, finding that his fiancee and her sisters did not like the bargain, got them out or the house on Bush street on the ground that he had found a buyer for it at $150 less than he had originally valued it at, that is for $1300. SWIFT PUNISHMENT.

The Way in Which Justice Should be Administered.

A French "mac," who calls himself Mauri Fallet, was arrested at 11 o'clock yesterday morning by Officer Vignes for insulting a little fourteen year-old girl who makes her living by peddling cheap jewelry and fancy trinkets about the city. The fellow, who is a little, insignificant, bald-headed who is a little, insignificant, bald-headed Frenchman, came here with his "woman" only two or three months ago and the two took up their quarters on Alameda street.

Shortly after his arrest he was taken before Justice Owens in the Police Court, and as he stated that he was ready for trial officer Vignes was sworn and the brute was convicted and sentenced in short order.

The officer stated that Fallet met the child peddler on Alameda street, when he accosted her and grabbed her by the arm and began tampering with her, and placed one hand in her bosom while he held her hands with his left hand. At this moment witness came along and placed the fellow under arrest.

Fallet was sworn in his own defense and stated that he simply took held of the girl to make her understand that he wished to buy a comb. He could not speak English and this was the only way he had to make her understand what he wanted.

The Court evidently did not take much stock in the story, for he promptly found him guilty and sentenced him to pay a fine of $50 or serve a term of twenty-five days in the chain gang.

The fine was paid by his friends and he took his departure.

POSTAL CHANGES.

New Arrangements in the Delivery of the City Mail.

A change has been made by the postal authorities in the delivery of the city mail, commencing today. Heretofore mail, commencing today. Heretofore letter mails on the overland arriving at 3 p.m., also on the San Francisco express arriving at 2:30 p.m., have not been delivered in the business part of the city until 5:30 p.m., and in the residence pertion until after 8 a.m. the following day. By securing new city following day. By securing new city directories and adopting a new system of entering orders, it has been found possible to dispense with the services of one directory clerk, who is now sent out to meet the overland at San Bernardino, bringing in all letters distributed for delivery. This gives the office distributor time to work the San Francisco letter mail and have it ready also, so that when trains arrive on time the entire mail will be in the hands of the people within three hours after its arrival in the city. Another change brought about by this is that the morning San Francisco mail, which has heretofore been delivered on the outskirts of the city before it was the outskirts of the city before it was in the business part, will now reach the business men in time to answer their correspondence on the train leaving at 1:30 p.m. By rearrangement of the schedule, business carriers will now leave at 8 a.m. instead of 7:15, taking this mail out with them. Changes in the collecting of mail from street letter boxes are to be made by which close connection with the El Paso express will also be had. the outskirts of the city before it was

The recent prolonged dissension among the members of the Board of Education over the filling of the vacancy caused by the resignation of A. C. Shafer, the member from the Fifth Ward, which was patched up by the election of W. W. Hitchcock, will in all probability be renewed in the near fu-ture, as Mrs. Margaret Hughes intends to contest that gentleman's election, and with good grounds. She has already obtained the consent of Attorney-General Hart to institute equo warranto proceedings, and will file a complaint this morning in a suit en-titled the people of the State of Cali-fornia on a complaint of Mrs. Margaret Hughes against William W. A Flendish Act.

The wrecking of a passenger train near Colfax early yesterday morning adds another crime to California's long and black list. In this instance the pur pose of the wreckers was no doubt bery or spite, and they were especially reckless of consequences to life an limb. Bolts, and nuts were removed from the rails so that they spread as the train was passing. The engine, fruit-car and coach got over the bad place safely, but the mail-car jumped from the rails and the sleeper was precipitated down an embankment sixty Twelve Pages feet and badly wrecked. Seven peopl were more or less injured. The only wonder is that everybody in the car was not killed In fact, it may be con-We presented last Sunday a statement of county finances for the year 1890, sidered fortunate that the entire train did not go over the embankment, with showing the principal items of receipt frightful consequences.

Whoever tampered with the rails at such a place did so with wholesale murder in his heart. The first and most natural conclusion of the public will be that it is the fiendish work of the robber Dalton, who escaped from jail a week or ten days ago. Such bloody minded revenge against an innocent public ought to outlaw him if he is the guilty man, and he should be shot down

If they are caught no sloppy sentimentality or sophistica-tion of legal practice should be allowed to save them from the gallows. Train wrecking is now a capital offense, and we need a few brilliant examples under this law to protect the traveling public from such cold-blooded procedures.

A business man of the city has sent to THE TIMES an envelope addressed to him and sent through the Los Angeles postoffice, containing a printed circular f Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Cambridge Mass., and also a printed card (evidently inserted here in Los Angeles) demand ing the boycotting of a local merchant because he advertises in this paper, This act is clearly the work of the gang of lawless wretches, led by that fraud and failure, McGlynn, who are now writhing in the throes of ignominions defeat after their fourteen months impotent crusade against Tue Times They are thus resorting to further shameless violation of law by using the United States mails for vicious, vindic tive and blackmailing purposes. We ask other citizens who have received these impudent cards through the mails to forward the envelopes and contents to this office; and we demand of the postal authorities, from Mr. Postmaster General Wanamaker down to the inchmbent of the local office, to institute a rigid investigation, to the end that the facts may be uncovered and the guilty parties punished.

Prominent railroad men say that work on the line will be resumed this winter. The first work will be done in the tunnels, of which there will be three long and very expensive ones. One hundred miles of track will cost altogether over $2,500,000. The rail-road people are encouraged by the great amount of traffic done over the Coast division from Ellwood south, also from Santa Margarita north. The volume of this traffic exceeds all expectations. It is now believed that when the line is opened through San Luis Obispo, traffic will be doubled, and the company does not intend to lose any time in finishing

By Telegraph to The Times.

HARRISBURG, PA., Oct. 13 .- [By the Associated Press.] The special session of the State Senate was called to order this morning. The Governor's message, calling the session, was read. In it he said the session was convened to take action in relation to the alleged misconduct of two departments of the State government, as well as of other elective officers.

The Governor reviewed at great length the testimony taken by the various committees which have been investigating the affairs of Bardsley, the Philadelphia treasurer who is now in the penitentlary, and severely arraigned Henry K. Boyer, the State Treasurer, and Thomas McCamant, the Auditor-General, for their connection with Bardsley's misdoings.

In conclusion, the Governor said that the responsibility of determining whether reasonable cause exists for their removal rests with the Senate, and the public expected it would be met and discharged without regard to partisan advantage or detriment to the honor of the commonwealth.

A committee of three Democrats and three Republicans was appointed to draw up rules of procedure, and an ad-journment was taken until tomorrow. The committee charged with the in-vestigation of the affairs of the Auditor-

General and State Treasurer this morn ing adopted a report and sent it to Gov. Pattison. The committee finds that the evidence wholly fails to disclose any just ground for suspicion as to the personal or official integrity of State Treasurer Boyer, and that it fails to show any act of personal or official dishonesty on the part of Auditor-General McCam-ant, or the improper receipt by him of any money, either directly or indirectly, from Bardsley. The committee charges as reprehensible the custom of two departments allowing county treasurers to withhold large sums of money collected by them. In regard to the present system of depositing State funds, the committee suggests that the law should be speedily changed.

By Telegraph to The Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—[By the Asso ciated Press.] Bishop Hargreaves of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, presided at today's session of the Ecumenical Methodist Council. Resolutions referred to a committee concerning joint action of Methodist missionary bodies working in the same fields were reported back favorably, and a com-mittee appointed to consider the sub-

The council then proceeded to the order of the day. The subject was "The Church and her Agencies;" being the same as that discussed yesterday.

Rev. J. Travis, general missionary secretary of the Primitive Methodist Church of England, read a paper on "The Place and Power of Lay Agencies in the Church." He said the Methodist denominations are agreed that the laity have a place, but they are far from be ing agreed as to its extent, and here is the supreme difficulty to organic Methodist union. He pleaded for the systematic training of lay preachers. Bishop Ninde of Kansas delivered an Bishop Ninde of Kansas delivered an address on "The Deaconess Movement." The movement had, he said, surpassed the expectations of its sanguine friends. It had been urged by some that the movement interfered with the proper sphere of women. Who was to define woman's sphere? We find her today behind the counter, in the shop and factory, in the office. There was much talk of woman unsex. ing herself and plunging society into convulsions. There were silly men and silly women. A representative woman could be trusted.

Rev. Dr. Walters of London, hoped that at the next council woman would be permitted to take her place upon the platform and address the conference It was fifteen years since the establishment of the sisterhood in England, in connection with the Children's Home, and as a member of the committee he could bear witness to the grand success of the movement.

Rev. Dr. Applegate of New Jersey spoke of the agency of lay workers in the church. The great question of co-operation rests with them.

Rev. Thomas Lawrence of England feared that the Methodist Church was not raising the number of local preachers it should. There should be open air meetings and the 'church should not lower its flag to the Salvation Army or lower its flag to the Salvation Army or other agency.

Rev. Dr. A. B. Leonard of New York said that the need of honest work on the part of the laity was great indeed, and he was thoroughly convinced that the masses of the people could never be reached except through their efforts. Every member of the church must come to consider himself an evangelist to save souls.

Rev. Dr. Fry, editor of the Central Christian Advocate, read an interesting paper on the subject of "Woman's Work in the Church." In Christian lands, he said, there were thousands of persons who had no knowledge of Christ. A hundred should enter the work where now one was engaged, and woman must take a prominent part in it. The church could not do the work before it without the aid of women. The way to determine the proper sphere of woman's work in the church was by the same rule as that applied to men-individual fitness for their duties Rev. William Gorman of the Trish Methodist Church of Belfast, marie a strong plea for women in connection with every phase of church work.

Prof. J. P. Lanvis, of the United Brethren in Christ of Dayton, O., and

Rev. Thomas Hunt of England spoke in the same strain.

Rev. Dr. Lewis of the Methodist Episcopal Church South said that it was a fallacy to believe that because a large majority of the people were hammer-ing after a thing, it was a manifestaing after a thing, it was a manny-tion of the divine wish. "God created them male and female." said he, "not female and male. Woman was exfemale and male. Woman was ex-pected under the divine providence to sustain the same relation to the mascu line church that she did to the family not one of subordination, but one of equality in certain lines."

Rev. Dr. Buckley of New York said that women could not do the work of preachers without collision with the laws of nature. They must be mothers or they must be preachers, not both. St. Paul had said that they should not

Rev. Dr. Hass of Tennessee also called attention to St. Paul's words and asserted that if God had intended man and woman to do the same work he would have made them alike. At this juncture Mr. Atkinson, member of Parliament of England, proceeded to char-liament of England, proceeded to char-acterize Dr. Hass's argument as logical jugglery, saying that if men and women were created alike, there would be no men or women. He also remarked that Dr. Buckley had gotten an awful twist on this question.

Rev. Dr. Reid, of the Japanese mis-

Rev. Dr. Reid, of the Japanese mission, paid a high tribute to the work of female missionaries under his own observation. and Rev. F. W. Bourne's remarked that he had no patience with the narrow and bigoted version of St. Paul's words on this subject.

Several other delegates spoke on the subject during the afternoon.

Resolutions were adopted approving the project to erect a memorial to this council on some suitable site in Washington, in the shape of a bronze statue of John Wesley, and a committee, headed by Bishop Fowler of San Francisco, was appointed to raise funds.

A Museum-Children Cry for It.

Los Angeles, Sept. 22.—[To the Editor of The Times.] In today's Times I see notice of a petition by Mrs. Childs, praying the Council to establish a museum in this city.

It has always seemed to me a matter of regret that the city, in erecting the Library building, did not also make room for a museum, as the latter is quite as great an educator as the library.
I cannot conceive of any greater attraction to the tourist than a museum illustrative of the fauna and flora, etc., of California. These are to visitors entirely new, and the many who visit this section are compelled to leave it with but the knowledge that they have seen many rare and peculiar things, but they could not find the names of

A museum building once completed will soon be made interesting. Thousands animated like myself by the desire to see this city take its proper place among the cities of this continent would be only to pleased too help about the good work

The spending of city funds on parks outside the city, frequented only by gophers and squirrels, when we are more in need of a museum, seems to me but a waste of public funds.

These parks require yearly more money than the building of a museum would cost, and once erected a small charge for admission would make it

Within the last year collections have within the last year collections have been dispersed in this city enough to equip a museum and the city might have acquired them at its own price. ELE: the City Council take the initiative and the enterprise of our citizens will do the rest.

Dr. Woh's life work has been from early youth one of persistent and untiring observation, study and investigation, as fully as lay in his power to perfect himself in all branches of the art of healing human sickness and disease. Born in China, of induced the second of the art of healing human sickness and disease. Born in China, of induced in the land physicians, Dr. Woh naturally followed in the Gotsteper half fathers. In China he has practiced his profession for several years, being at one time g physician in the imperial Hospital, and in America for a long time. His great number of patients, his wonderful and many cures, and the great list of letters from grateful and thankful patrons now prove him to be a remarkable and successful healer of sickness and all diseases. Dr. Woh was recommended to me by a friend. I had been troubled for years with indigestion, causing fearful headaches and vertigo, making my life one of misery. I tried and paid the best physicians without relief. Finally, to please my friend. I visited Dr. Woh at his office and he advised with me and gave me medicines. This was but six weeks ago. Today I can gladly and sincerely say that he has entirely cured me, April 3d, 1891.

THE FIELD-SHORB SUIT.

The Ninth Day of the Sensational Contest.

Miss Shorb a Very Important Witness for the Defendants.

She Gives in Detail a History of Harris's Last Illness.

Proceedings of the Supreme Court-Suit o a Land Contract-The San Pedro Libel Case - General Court News.

The trial of the sensational suit insti tuted by Public Administrator Field against Dr. and Mrs. A. S. Shorb to compel them to turn over about $35,-J. Harris, deceased, for the benefit of his heirs, was resumed for the ninth day before Judge Van Dyke and a jury in Department Four yesterday.

The proceedings commenced with the examination of P. R. Wilson, Esq., an attorney, who controverted the testimony of the plaintiff's witness, Eil-ander, a nurse, in several material points.

Miss Lillie B. Shorb was then called, and proved an important witness for the defense, as she evinced a better memory for dates and events than either of her parents. She stated that she first met Harris in 1886. He came to the Shorb residence with his wife, and from that time until her death they were frequent visitors there. Mrs. Harris had been a domestic in the Shorb household previous to her marriage. After she had separated from her husafter she had separated from ter his-band a reconciliation was brought about, and from that time up to her death from consumption they had been together nearly all the time. During her illness Miss Shorb and her parents paid her constant attention, and when she died were at the funeral. Several she died were at the funeral. Several times, in company with the grief-stricken husband, they visited her grave and laid flowers upon it. In response to questions relative to Harris' habits, Miss Shorb declared the

Harris upon one occassion referred to him as "a dirty old fool," who lalked to himself and acted strangely. Harris kept a huge cane by his bed and when he wanted the nurse to get up he would use it to good effect. The nurse absented himself for many hours at a time, and when she would ask him how Mr. Harris Sected at night he would in. Mr. Harris rested at night he would invariably say, "very well, indeed," or "had a good night." When the patient heard this he would accuse the nurse of lying, and declare that the only person when the property of the patient well was the nurse of lying, and declare that the only person when the property of the prope slept well was the nurse. With reference to the money the witness stated that in February or March of 1890, Harris one day drew from his pocket a certificate of deposit and showing it to her mother, remarked that he was going to give it to her; that she had been so kind that he never could fully repay her. Mrs. Shorb replied that it certainly was a very handsome presant, or words to that effect. Harris then took the certhat effect. Harris fine took the certificate and put it back in his pocket. The witness said she did not see it again until her mother had. It.

Harris also gave her a bundle of papers to take to her mother. The package contained a pocketbook and a good many valuable documents.

All the while Harris was sick he was perfectly rational and of remarkably sound mind. He was a very shrewd business man in many ways.

In explaining how Harris happened to give her father the $6000, she said traded some lots up north for lots in San Diego. It was a poor bargain apparently, for the San-Diego lots were not worth $200 each, and with Dr. Shorb's assistance the deal was broken up and Harris got his Washington Territory lots back again. So pleased was he that he declared he would give Dr. Shorb the money for the first one he sold. Fortunately the first sale footed up $6000 and he immediately turned it over to the Doctor.

Soon after Harris' death the certifi-Soon after Harris' death the certificater deposit came up for discussion in their house. She advised that it be presented at the bank and collected immediately. She explained to her parents the necessity of this; it was a matter of prudence. The Public Administrator might attach it and then they would have to go to law about it.

The witness was next asked its to the feeling that existed between Harris

The witness was next asked us to the feeling that existed between Harris and his relatives. This she proceeded to do by relating what Harris had told her. When he was married he sent his relatives wedding cards, and they never replied. When Mrs. Harris died they commenced to write, addressing him as "Dear Dan." Harris said he understood it all and knew just what it ment—this pretended feeling of sympathy. When the brother talked about coming out, Harris' advice was he had better stay at home; that he did not want to see him. When the nephew came out the sick man, according to Miss Shorb, was far from being pleased. He characterized his relatives as a pack of hungry wolves, who were after his money; but he frequently declared that he would see that they got none of it.

this morning. SUIT ON A LAND CONTRACT.

The case of Thomas Nelmes against James G. Wilson, a suit on a land contract, came up for trial before Judge Wade in Department Three yesterday and occupied his attention all day. The plaintiff in his complaint alleged that on August 31, 1887, Mrs. M. W. Robinson, a widow, entered into an agreement with C. C. Boynton, trustee, whereby the latter agreed to purchase Robinson, a widow, entered into an agreement with C. C. Boynton, trustee, whereby the latter agreed to purchase a piece of land in the Mullin subdivision at Pasadena for $6000, payable in installments. On December 27 of that year Mrs. Robinson gave a deed of conveyance for this land to her brother, the defendant, subject, however, to the contract of sale. On April 2, 1888, Boynton assigned the land to plaintiff as security for a loan of $3000, but subsequently learned that Mrs. Robinson could not fulfill her agreement, because she did not own the property she pretended to convey. He, therefore, sought to cancel the contract, to recover $3934.18, the amount paid on account of said contract, and to foreclose a lien for that amount on that part of the property really owned by Mrs. Robinson. The defendant, on the other-hand, claims that Mrs. Robinson owned all the land except a strip two owned all the land except a strip two and one-half feet wide at one end, and of this she was unaware at the time of the conveyance.

SAN PEDRO LIBEL CASE.

When the criminal libel case of George W. Peck, cashier of the bank at San Pedro, against J. W. Davis, a druggist of that place, was called before Judge McKinley, yesterday, a continuance was granted until December 7 next, on the ground of the serious illness of the defendant, who is suffering ness of the defendant, who is suffering from some cerebral affection.

Affidavits were presented by physicians to the effect that Davis's condition was such that he could not go to trial, and his attorney stated that he did not think the case could ever be tried, owing to his malady. On the other hand, it is alleged that Davis is still pursuing his vocation as a druggist, putting up prescriptions. etc., which is causing considerable talk.

Some months ago, Davis had some disagreement with Peck over a business transaction, involving some $75, and issued a scurrilous circular concerning him, which he distributed at San Pedro and in this city.

THE RUSSELL MILITIA CASE.

THE RUSSELL MILITIA CASE.

In Department Two yesterday the case of the People of the State of California, ex rel. W. H. H. Russell vs. William G. Schrieber, a suit to oust defendant and put Russell in possession of the office of colonel of the Seventh Reg-iment, N.G.C., the same having been usurped by defendant by virtue of a preusurped by defendant by virtue of a pre-tended order of the Commander-in-Chief dated August 1, 1890, came up for hearing before Judge Clark. The only witness examined was Maj. L. S. Butler for the plaintiff, both sides de-pending upon documentary evidence. The matter was ordered to be submitted upon briefs, the parties thereto being allowed ten days each in which to prepare the same.

GRANTED A NEW TRIAL.

In Department One yesterday morning W. H. Harbell appeared before Judge Smith on a writ of habeas corpus and applied for his release from the custody of the Sheriff on the ground that he was held by virtue of a commit-ment which was void and defective. The petitioner was tried and convicted by Justice Anderson of Vernondale for having disturbed the peace of Will Bee-gle on September 1, and was fined in the sum of $50, with the alternative of fifty days' imprisonment in the County Jail, from which judgment he appealed. Upon learning the facts in the case, Judge Smith dismissed the writ and remanded the petitioner, but granted him a new trial and set the case for hearing on Wednesday next. on Wednesday next.

Court Notes.

PARTY AT THE ST. ANGELO.

PARTY AT THE ST. ANGELO.
The Misses Smith of the St. Angelo entertained their friends at a dancing party last evening, which is practicall the first of the opening season. The St Angelo is beautifully adapted to the giv ing of balls, receptions and other forms of social pleasure. The parlors open pleasantly from the wide hall, and the dining-room below makes a charming ballroom. The rooms were handsomely dining room below makes a make ballroom. The rooms were handsomely decorated last evening, and the guests received by Mrs. Smith and her daughters in their accestomed hospitable style. An orchestra discoursed sweet music for dancing, and the evening was one of great enjoyment to all present.

Efforts Being Made to Extend the Gas Mains—General News Notes.

An effort is being made to get gas put in on Daly street, north of the avenue. Several property-owners wish the more convenient light for their residences, and it is probable that if the mains were put in the Congregationalists and pos-sibly the Presbyterians, also, would at once take advantage of the opportunity and light their respective churches with

Capt. S. W. Chase at present has a bad looking eye, the result of a slight accident which occurred Sunday. He was trying to manage a spirited young horse, which was confined in a box-stall, and in some way received a heavy blow from the butt end of a whip he carried, raising a large lump, and nearly closing the optic.

One of the most pleasant parties of One of the most pleasant parties of the season occurred at the residence of Mrs. Stubblefield, on Kuhrts street, Monday evenlug. The affair was a surprise given Jay Swezea, and a goodly number of his friends and associates were present. Many members of the orchestra, to which he also belongs, were in attendance, and music, on different instruments, helped to heighten the social pleasure of the evening. Ice cream and other refreshments were served during the evening.

SAN DIEGO NEWSPAPER WAR.

More Libel Suits, both Civil and Criminal. The fight among the San Diego news paper men is becoming very exciting. Collector Berry has commenced another suit against the Union for $50,000, and complaints and counter-complaints are flying about thick and fast. The situa-tion is outlined by the Sun, of Monday, as follows:

George W. Monteith this morning swore out a second criminal libel complaint, this time against the Union. The article complained of was the editorial which appeared next day after the altercation between Gardiner and Monteith in the pavilion.

A summons was served on Business Manager Gardiner, and the trial was set for Friday, Oct. 23.

The trial of the other charges against the Sun will be heard on October 20.

These trials are to be heard by Judge Dudley as Police Judge, who has authority to pass final judgment, subject, of course, to appeal.

According to report a complaint was being made out this morning charging George W. Monteith with insanity. No warrant was issued, however.

HIS LEG BROKEN.

An Italian Laborer Run Over by a Cable Last evening about, 6:30 o'clock an Italian laborer named Leonard Provin-sono met with an accident which will probably cost him his leg. About 6 o'clock, Provinsone, with six other Italians, boarded train No. 66, east bound, at the corner of First and Spring streets, taking seats on the dummy, Provinsono occupying the rear seat. At Ord street the train stopped, when part of the men get off. As the train started off some of the men noticed that Provinsono was still on the dummy and called out to him to get off. The man started up, and without waiting for the car to stop, attempted to jump off, when he caught in some way and was partially dragged under the car, the wheels passing over his right leg between the knee and ankle, fracturing it badly.

The police station was at once notified, and the patrol wagon sent after the injured man, who was removed to his

have to come off.

AN ANGRY WOMAN.

Mrs. Potter Whips Two Girls and Four Bloods. At 12:30 this morning a disturbance was raised in the Potter lodging-hous Main street, next to the Crystal Palace. A couple of young bloods rented a room in the house and stocked it with wine and whisky. They then invited two girls and a couple of their male companions up and proceeded to enjoy themselves to their hearts' con-

After they had been there a short time they became quite noisy, and Mrs. Potter, the landlady, sent out for an officer. Sergt, Jeffries happened to be near and promptly responded. When he and the landlady reached the door they found it locked, and, as the young people would not open up, the peacemakers were up a stump, so to speak, and the burly 'cop' was about to give up the good fight, when a bright idea idea struck Mrs. Potter of Texas, so she secured a big whip and made her way to the front window, which she found unfastened. Quicker than a flash she opened it and jumped into the

Before the astonished sports knew what was up she lit in with her whip and slashed right and left. She broke the whip over the head of one of the bloods in the first round, and then danced in with her fists and had things her own with fer first and had things her own way for a few minutes, when the gang doubled up on the little woman and were about to get away with her when she scooted for the door and opened up for the burly bluecoat, who placed the gay gang under arrest and bravely marched them to the police station, where they gave their names as John Sanders, John Cunningham, John Dillon, Dick Jones, Cora Fairman and May Thompson. They were admitted to bail in the sum of $10 each and ordered to appear in the police her own way for a few minutes, when and ordered to appear in the police court at 1:30 p. m. today.

THE RACES.

Busy Scenes at Agricultural Park—The Great Free-for-all. Agricultural Park will present a busy scene during the present week. There are already a large number of horses at the track, and new arrivals will be dropping in every day from now until the races commence on Monday next. The great free-for-all trot promises to be one of the most exciting contests ever seen in the State, and is causing a great deal of talk all over the Coast All of the events are well filled, and the meeting promises to be a most success

The San Diegan of Monday has the following concerning McKinney, who is just now attracting much attention:
The race stock which appeared on the Coronado track last week, left by special train last night for Los Angeles, where most of the horses are entered in the races to be held there next week. In the free-for all at Los Angeles, McKinney and Silas Skinner will meet, and it is believed that for the first time. McKinney will be compelled to extend to himself, and to show what he can really do.

can really do.

Charley Durfee. McKinney's owner and driver, stated yesterday that when he came here he determined to send McKinley over the track for a recerd better than 2:17%, which he attained at Stockton. Durfee was hopeful of making the horse do the circuit in 2:15, and undoubtedly he is capable of that record. But on arriving here he found that record. But on arriving here he found the track was not in condition to make such a feat possible, and therefore the horse was simply driven to win.

Burfee has a standing offer of $25,000 for McKinney, and the offer is coupled with another offer of $30,000 if the horse is madie to beat his record of 2:17%. Durfee is after the $30,000, and will get it.

THE IMMANUEL ORGAN.

One of the Fipest Instruments Ever Sent to the Coast.

The New York Musical Courier of October 7, has the following about the new organ for the Immanuel Presby terian Church of this city:

dine & Son. and will be one of the finest organs in California, being built on the largest scale.

The diapasons particularly full and rich in tone and four of these stops being of sixteen-foot tone, give depth and majesty to its full organ, and when the chorus stops are drawn make a brilliant ensemble, each stops operfectly blending as to create power without harshness. The solo stops present every variety of organ tone, from the delicate "acolina" and "clariana" of the string tone to the sweet flute d'amour, and the powerful ringing doppel flute, and martial tone of its trumpet and the orchestral character of its bassoon and violoncello are faithfully preserved. The organ is well equipped with mechanical appliance, enabling the organist to produce every effect of light and shade while playing.

The case is of the most elegant design, twenty-two feet wide and is surmounted by a circle of glided trumpets. It is to be forwarded at once, and Mr. Charles S. Jardine will erectit, and on its completion give a recital and display its powers. This organ is the magnificent gift to the church of Mr. A. S. Robbins, of Los Angeles.

tinue in session three days.

The fourth day they will visit Palo Alto to call upon Senator Stanford and look at his horses and at his university. On their return Saturday night the bankers will have a big banquet at the Palace Hotel. The Examiner says:

"The local bankers have subscribed nearly $4000 for the present entertainment, and probably more will be added, because the Los Angeles bankers last year, when the Bankers' Association was organized, gave a splendid entertainment to their San Francisco cousins in wealth. James Thompson of the Mutual Savings Bank has charge of the Entertainment Committee and he will preside at the Palace Hotel banquet."

The cheapest and best land in Southern California for oranges and lemons.

Altitude about the same as Redlands, making it very free from frost.

Dry atmosphere, making it, like Redlands, free from scale.

Soil claimed by the best judges, to be even better than that of Redlands and Riverside.

Water supply (i inch to 4 acres) equal to the best in Southern California.

9000 acres sold in less than a year in small tracts, mostly 10 and 20 acres each.

Prices have steadily advanced from 800 an acre one year ago to $110 an acre now, and will advance to $120 an acre next month.

We have no desire to sell this land to any but actual improvers, but, comparing the prices with the $400, 8000 and $600 land of Redlands and Riverside, it is unnecessary to have much foresight to see that there is a good speculative value in it now.

We have a few 10-acre tracts for sale from early buyers at $90 an acre; a few at $95 an acre; a few at $95 an acre; a several at $100 an acre; over 2000 acres at $10 ac acre; a few tens at $120, $125, $150 and $250 acre. Also a few large undivided tracts at still lower prices.

There is no "boom" here, still, if you are going to buy, you save money just the same by buying at once.

If it don't suit you to come and select the land and you wish us to do so, we will make a careful selection for you that will be just as good as if you spent a couple of days in looking over the ground.

W. R. Baker stated that he had secured space for a Pasadena exhibit at the agricul-tural fair in Los Angeles next week. Hithspace for a Pasadena exhibit at the agricultural fair in Los Angeles next week. Hitherto Mr. Bager has done most of the exhibiting himself. It was resolved, therefore, to make a special effort this year to secure a large and varied exhibit, which will properly set forth the resources of this section. M. H. Weight, M. E. Wood and Charles Legg were appointed a committee to take the affair in charge and it was decided to call upon the following companies and individuals for contributions for the exhibit; L. S. Porter, E. A. Bovine, Ezra Dane, the Bishop-Loop Crystallising Company, C. C. Thompson, Pasadena Packing Company, Frank F. Stetson, W. R. Baker, C. E. Tebbetts, M. Rosenbaum, Park Nursery Company, Highland Nursery Company, Mr. Chisholm, Mr. Shelhamer, Mr. Hovey and others. A systematic canvass will be made and as a result ican be reasonably expected that Pasadena will be well represented at the fair.

The matter of the proposed publication of a pamphlet descriptive of Pasadena's attractions and resources was then brought up for discussion. The Committee on Printing and Advertising was instructed to make arrangements for the early publication of 10,000 such pamphlets, with the possibility of an extra issue of *10,000 copies. It was decided to turn over the money remaining in the citrus fair fund to aelp pay for the pamphlets.

The meeting then adjourned. The directors will convene again at an early date.

A NEW ERA OF PROSPERITY.

If Pasadena does not enjoy a most pros perous winter, the people, especially the

If Pasadena does not enjoy a most prosperous winter, the people, especially the business men who ought to be well posted, are very much mistaken. Everywhere the most hopeful anticipations are expressed and an apparently well grounded belief prevails that this season will be far ahead of anything Pasadenians have enjoyed since the boom.

The reporter, in traversing the business section of town yesterday, made it a point to inquire the opinion of those he met as to the outlook. It is a notable fact that trade has increased very decidedly in almost every branch of business during the past month or more, and that the business now being done here is far ahead of that of a year ago. At the postomice, for instance, which usually indicates pretty accurately the pulse-beats of a community, it was learned that the business transacted during September, 1891, was over 30 per cent, in excess of that transacted during September, 1890. And so with the railroads, the telegraph offices, the banks, the hotels and boarding houses, the street-car lines, the liverymen, and all classes of merchants. It is difficult to run across a man whose afairs are not in a more prosperous condition than they were a year ago, and who is not firmly conwere a year ago, and who is not have entered upon an era of permanent prosperity.

The winter season, moreover, has not perpending the full of visitors from all sections of the country, who will contribute materially to the growth and support of the place and still further stimulate trade in all of its various channels.

The banquet tendered at the Hotel Green esterday evening to Mr. C. F. Holder, by yesterday evening to Mr. C. F. Holder, by the Valley Hunt, was a very pleasant affair. The tables were spread for over half-a-hundred members of the club and invited guests. The banquet was a bountiful one, prepared in the height of culinary art, and served in excellent taste. Later on all adjourned to the ballroom, where dancing was indulged in for several hours, the music being furnished by Arend's Los Angeles orchestra. ANOTRER MUSICAL ORGANIZATION.
In referring generally to the leading musical organizations in town in yesterday's issue, the Academy of Music was unintentionally omitted. This institution has only recently been organized here, but it already stands on a firm basis and has every prospect of a successful future. Here the pupils perfect themselves in music, both instrumental and vocal, and their appearances in public so far have elicited hearty approval. Such institutions as these tell on the culture of a community.

Preacher Yatres, who "did" the town last week, turns out to be an adventurer of the first water. Yesterday's Times gives an account of a glorious racket he got on at San Pedro.. In Pasadena, it is said, he got away with considerable money, and left Sunday night just in time to escape an arrest. Preacher Yatres had better vamoose to some other section of the State.

The proposed debate on the irrigation question between C. C. Brown and some body else, as yet unknown, is likely to materialize. The operahouse is spoken of as the proper place for holding the debate, the plan being to charge an admission fee and donate the proceeds to some charitable object. The information derived from listening to such a discussion would be invaluable. By all means let us have the debate.

The cause of this fire is accounted for as follows: Mary, Mrs. Graber's servant, had been to the laundry, which is about twenty feet from the dwelling, and lighted the oil stove to heat the irons. She returned to the house to do a little work, and looking out a few minutes later discovered the building aftre. the East.

[THE TIMES conveys news to Santa Bar-bara twenty-four hours ahead of the San Francisco papers. The branch office and agency is at No. 713 State street, where advertisements, orders for the paper and news-items may be left.]

The case of Paul vs. Paul, related in THE TIMES of yesterday, produced considerable comment here, where both litigants are

It has been ascertained that a son and son-in-law of Mr. Paul by his dusky former wife came to this city a few weeks ago and attempted to persuade the present Mrs. Paul to accompany them back to Indian Territory, and, failing in this, they tried to obtain possession of the only child—a lit-tle girl—now with her mother in this city to obtain possession of the only child—a little girl—now with her mother in this city.

Mrs. Paul not only refused to return with them, but would not permit these emissaries to get possession of her daughter.

LAID UP FOR WANT OF WIND.

The remarkable stillness of the atmosphere the past few days has greatly literfered with the business of the sailing craft plying between here and the islands. The yacht Santa Barbara is about the only small vessel that is attending strictly to business, for it is provided with steam power.
This yacht brought over 1000 pounds of fish yesterday which were shipped away and will be in from Anacapa Island tomorrow with another load.

The Star of Freedom and Liberty are both overdue from the Islands, but can't get here in the present calim.

The Jenny Wand, a lumber schooner, is also overdue.

BREVITIES.

The weather aspect threatens rain all the time, but so far very little has fallen. Lima-bean growers have about completed thashing their crops. The price of beans is still slightly on the decline.

Nearly one hundred cars were used last week in carrying away to the East the pro-ductions of this and Ventura counties. Considerable complaint is heard about the high price of lumber in this city, and it is claimed that lumber is being sold in Ven-tura at much lower rates and at a profit. There was no session of the Superior Court here yesterday. Judge Williams re-turned to his home in Ventura yesterday morning, while Judge Cope has not yet re-turned from San Francisco.

Hard Sledding for a Late Orange County

Newspaper.

Santa Ana, Oct. 12.—[Correspondence of The Times.] The Santa Ana Blade, which has proven itself to be the "stayer" in the recent fight for exist-ence between it and the Santa Ana Free Press, gives the following detailed history of the struggles, trials and tribulations of its whilom "contrumpery," which it swallowed up last week:

which it swallowed up last week:

The Press surrendered with a flourish of trumpets that ill became it under the circumstances. If it was steadily gaining ground, what must its condition have been when the late managers took hold of it? On examination of its books, now in our possession, we find that its daily circulation was only 194, and 61 of that number were deadheads and exphanges, leaving 187. possession, we find that its daily circulation was only 194, and 61 of that number were deadheads and exchanges, leaving 133 on the pay roll. The three carriers delivered 138 papers. A. H. Harlin had charge of the carrier routes, buying the papers from the managers at 1 cent aplece. Of the 138 papers taken out by him 22 were complimentaries and exchanges, leaving 116 that he had to pay for, giving the managers a daily income of $1.16 (one dollar and sixteen cents) on subscriptions. What that would amount to per month can be easily figured out.

The circulation of the Weekly Press was 205. Of this number 53 were taken from the list of the deceased Fullerton Star, and 43 complimentaries and exchanges, leaving a balance of 162, 50 per cent. of whom are probably actual paying subscribers. Their-books show that they have collected, since the 1st of April last, on subscriptions to the Weekly Press, just $21.75.

This is almost as lame and impotent

This is almost as lame and impotent conclusion as that which was reached y the late Tribune of Los Angeles, under Boyce, Payne, Sheldon, Holder, Morrow, et al. The Free Press was formerly conducted by Broadbere and Dr. Burgess, and in its latter days by H. J. Vail and others. Burgess, the owner, made strenuous efforts to sell the paper to the Republicans, but not of them would buy. The Blade people next took it.

The Blade is an independent sheet, published by Mr. H. A. Peabody, and has patronage enough to support it fairly.

AGAIN THE DOG-CATCHER.

How One Woman Rescued Her Pet-Another Outrage.

A woman seldom gets the best of a man in a hand-to-hand fight, but there is one woman down on Wall street who has accomplished that feat. The other morning her household pet. a pretty dog, was frolicking in the yard in front of her dwelling in a perfectly harmless manner. A rough, uncouth-looking man came along, accompanied by two or three others of similar appearance. The man walked coolly into the yard, caught hold of the string about the dog's The man walked coolly into the yard, caught hold of the string about the dog's neck and dragged him out at the gate and started down the street. Just at this critical moment the dog's mistress appeared on the front porch, took in the situation and quicker than a flash, seized a good-sized stone and hurled it at the dog-catcher with such sure aim that it struck him between the shoulders, with force enough to knock him down. The dog escaped, ran back, and was hustled into the house. The dog-catcher gathered himself up and looked mad. Yesterday morning up on Fourth street a little three-year-old child was playing with her pet puppy. The dog-catcher came along, stooped down and began to whistle to the pup and enticed him out of the yard, caught him up under his coat and hurried off down the street leaving the child-screaming for her pet. If dog-catchers want to go about the streets gathering up homeless, miserable curs, that is within the law but to walk into people's yards and steal them is another thing, and is nun-

EAST

This space will soon contain some interesting news from East Whittier. That portion of country lying along the southern slope of the Puente Hills has long been an attractive place for home-seekers, its only drawback being lack of water. That disadvantage is now overcome by the East Whittier Land and Water Company's magnificent water system of eleven miles of solid cement work with a capacity of 20 million gallons daily and now carrying 5 million gallons of purest artesian water.

The East Whittier Land and Water Company will soon place on the market a few hundred acres of the choicest land in Southern California at a very low price, with the finest water in the country going with the land. If seeking a home with beautiful location, richest soil, purest air and water, the best of society. churches and schools, all in plain sight of Los Angeles and the ocean, and at lowest rates, come to East Whittier, or write to SCIENCE AND PROPHECIES. Light_Heat_Electricity.

Los Angeles, Oct. 12, 1891.-[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] This article will simply show what scientists state can easily occur upon the globe. As for attempting to make the masses believe that a God has already declared what shall inevitably happen, that would be a much more difficult task than to have them accept the declarations of a pro-fessor. And so far as the 1,400,000, 000 inhabitants are concerned, it be said that probably 1,000, are sincere Christians; 5,000, 900 are trying to understand 20,000,000 are nominally Chris-20,000,000 are nominally Christians; 70,000,000 have vague theas; and the other 1,300,000,000 know nothing about it, or care less, or are heathens and infidels, or idolators. It would take too much time to explain the complete fulfillment of prophecy up to the present day—to confer the most useful benefit would be to show what is near at hand—the culmination of final prophecy in our own generation, probably within this very decade.

It is best to affirm that science learns certain things in one decade, and declares them to be positive, and unlearns them in another decade and believes in almost the opposite.

them in another decade and believes in almost the opposite.

Prof. Rogers of Dunkirk has corrected much in his "New Philosophy of the Sun." Science has been asserting "that the moon is dead, having no water, no atmosphere, no clouds, no life in any form: that it is a supendous chief, in the second of the seco hitherto furnished the basis of our conceptions of the moon, is not to be relied upon. Prof. Holden, the astronomer in charge of the new Lick telescope, the largest in the world, says: There is no object in the heavens which we must not observe as if viewed for the first time. It has opened a new vista of the creation. It compels us to learn everything anew. Even the most familiar of supposed facts revealed by other telescopes, as the moon for example, are found in this great revelation to be, not facts but errors."

tion to be, not facts but errors. tion to be, not facts but errors."

So it would seem that scientists have caught glimpses and imagination has done the rest. For, as Prof. Regers says, "atmospheres are indispensable to visibility in all worlds," and a moon without an atmosphere would not be visible. The same is equally true of the sun itself. Inferentially, therefore, the moon possesses an atmosphere with all the concomitants of an atmosphere—heat, light, animal life phere with all the concomitants of an atmosphere—heat, light, animal life with intelligence, vegetable and mineral life, the property of reflection of great cosmical currents," etc.

This will be a great blow to the materialists who have accepted without question all the dicta of past science, but refuse to believe a word of what the Bible says. There is no question, however, that if the globe should suddenly stop in rotation on its axis, though we continued on in our orbit, everything on the surface, including occans, buildings, trees, would be hurled headlong into space. If the motion, on the other hand, should be increased in like proportion, all loose bodies would fly proportion, all loose bodies would fly off from the earth, like water from a swiftly turned grindstone, and men would require chains on their legs, like fastened bulldogs, to hold them to the earth.

And so, if the earth should simply move in its orbit, the side towards the sun would become an arid desert, roasting and parching out all life—and the other side would become a Siberia, leaving no existing life except, perhaps, upon a narrow rim between the lines of light and dayliness.

upon a narrow rim between the lines of light and darkness.

Of all the possible contingencies—of which scarcely anything is known—a comet could bring us sure destruction. It moves with almost incalculable vecoity. Its friction through the air would produce a heat many thousand times the degree necessary to melt steel. Science says that comets are not material bodies, their nebulosity being proved by the fact that stars can be seen in their positions when the comet intervenes between the earth and those distant suns. The brilliancy and luminosity of the nucleus proves that intense nosity of the nucleus proves that intense heat does exist. Feathers are light and would scarcely injure any other substance when impinged by the violence of a tornado, provided they came separately. But confined together, even in a mosquito netting, they would be projected through a stone wall. So if the particles of a comet are compressed together at such a velosity, two effects might be produced by the millions of miles of comet—the atmosphere would instantly be destroyed by the heat, and all life and combustible material on the surface would be burnt heat, and all life and combustible material on the surface would be burnt in that conflagration—or the force of the currents produced by the comet's velocity would carry the earth out of its orbit into unknown space, and change all its previous existing laws. If it should revolve in vicinity of Jupiter or Saturn, we would become a piter or Saturn, we would become a globe of ice. If pushed into the vicin-ity of Mercury or Venus all our water would be converted into steam.

Lasalle and other eminent astronomers maintained that a slight deflection would eventually come by which the earth and other planets would drop into the sun. And now as one of the incidents of the past decade we were informed that Hilda, one of the asteroids had fallen into the planet Mars. If we should cross a comet that intense heat could not come into our atmosphere without evaporating al our waters, and even our metals would turn into yapproper. even our metals would turn into vapors Therefore the Christian knows, from

Therefore the Christian knows, from the word of God, that such eonsequences are not to ensue and that comets will not strike the earth. Mankind is not to be utter, y destroyed, nor the earth changed until certain foregoing and foretold events have occurred.

The assertion that light could become the destroyer of the globe's surface would probably be treated with utter incredulity by nearly all mankind. And yet science has demonstrated this as a truth. It teaches that light emanates from the sun and that heat and also incredulity by nearly all mankind. And yet science has demonstrated this as a truth. It teaches that light emanates from the sun, and that heat and electricity are dual forces developed by light. God created these greatest of forces with His first command. "Let there be light, and there was light." If heat came directly in all the sun's rays ice would always melt in contact with them, but experiments teach that the rays of light may be passed through a convex lens of ice with the same certainty as through a lens of glass; and that these rays will set on fire combustibles at the icy focus. Light is one of the great physical forces which rule the solar system. Electricity dominates all, and is the force which retains the planets in their orbits and the sun in his place and causes the stars to revolve in axial rotation around the common center of their sun's magnetic poles. And so as we see upon this globe that dynamos and magnets require constant attention to renew their forces—can we doubt that a great overruling Providence alone can provide for the renewal of these stupendously marvelous celestial dynamos! Chemistry demonstrates that wherever component elestrates that wherever component ele-ments are suddenly transformed, great heat heat or cold is evolved. And when light is transformed into electricity light is transformed into electricity without a good conductor to carry it off, intense heat develops. The great difficulty in using electricity to recreate light has always been the development of intense heat, which destroyed the material. Now through Mr. Edison and others this is being overcome, a and it is almost possible to turn night into day. Light-not only develops into electricity and causes the electric currents but it is transformed into heat to produce vegetable life and another portion creates vapor from the sea and tion creates vapor from the sea and other waters and develops force to carry that vapor throughout the earth. Prof. Tice estimates that in the single matter of rainfall the sun, through the agency of rainfall the sun, through the agency of light, does an amount of work that the whole human family, all the oxen, mules, horses and steam engines in the world could not perform one millionth part of it.

The steady pouring of the sun's rays upon the earth for thousands of years has kept our globe inhabitable. An increased light would, if sufficiently extended, transform the globe into a molten mass and destroy all forms of life. We have been promised immunity from a second deluge. But we have another event yet to come. "The light of the sun shall be seven-fold and that of the moon shall be as the sun." Perhaps its startling import has failed to attract proper attention—seven times the light. proper attention—seven times the light we have now! What would that do! Bring upon us tornadoes and earthquakes and lightning such as man never saw. The clouds would give a variation by electrical phenomena congealing into masses of ice that would be proposed. masses of ice that would be propelled downward with the terrific force of our downward with the terrific force of our most formidable missiles under a charge of dynamite. Science teaches that as a result of increased light—and yet, strange to say that is precisely what John says, in Revelations xvi, would occur in the latter days, though science had not demonstrated such results in his time. What would the moon's increased reflection alone cause at such a short distance from the earth! distance from the earth?

distance from the earth?

It would take the light of 800,000 moons like ours to give a brilliancy equal to that we receive from the sun on a day of cloudless sunshine. We have our light diffused and the atmosphere reflects and scatters it in every direction. From the distance of the moon an equal light would come in vertical rays, that would first roast us alive and then turn the globe into a molten mass. The sun's rays increased seven fold The sun's rays increased seven fold would become like those which Mercury receives, turning our waters immediately into steam and our metals into vapors. Those who deride the prophecies might well call upon the mountains to fall upon them in such a day when as Luke records Christ's averaged. mountains to fall upon them in such a day, when, as Luke records Christ's saying, "there will be upon the earth distress of nations with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth—for the powers of heaven shall be shaken!"

Yours truly, Blanton Duncan.

AN ANSWER. [WRITTEN BY A YOUNG GIRL.] You say we are leaving a fairy-land, The land of beautiful snow. Where coasting and skating and sleighrides abound And glorious wind-storms blow.

But what care we, the snow to see, While the sky with darkness glowers, We soon shall go where oranges grow,— To that beautiful land of flowers.

We must leave our hills and the rocks and But we go to a fairer land: And there we shall be, 'neath the pomegran-ate tree. By beautiful butterflies fanned.

They will fan us to sleep, and gentle watch keep.
And play o'er us all the day.
And the birds and the flowers, 'neath the Still Paying for the Donkey.

[Philadelphia Enquirer.]

The most costly donkey in the State has just died at a town in the Lehigh Valley. A few years ago a gentleman from that part of the State yielded to the importunities of his little son for a donkey and bought a fine one. To pay for him and his trappings he bought 500 shares of Northern Pacific common treals are stated as a second of the state of the 500 shares of Northern Pacific common stock, expecting to sell out at a half dollar advance. The stock never went an eighth above the price he paid, but started down hill at once, and at a rapid rate. After a sharp break, the gentleman bought 500 shares more to average, but the price never went up enough to let him out. He has tried to average several times since, but the only result was to tie up a respectable fortune in Northern Pacific common stock, which showed him a loss when the donkey showed him a loss when the donkey died of almost $20,000. Since the costly beast expired the stock has gone up $3 a share, and if the present rise in the stock holds on for a time the denkey will yet he rold for donkey will vet be paid for.

An Honest Opinion.
[San Bernardino Times-Index.]

(San Bernardino Times-Index.)
There is some talk of an immigration convention for Southern California. Such a convention should convene at Los Angeles as the principal city in Southern California. No one need fear that injustice will be done the interior country by the Los Angelenos, but rather a disposition will be shown to fill up the agricultural country with settlers. Let the convention be held.

THE GRAND CANYON. The Williams Route to the Mighty

Split in the Earth.

WILLIAMS (A.T.,) Oct. 10 .- You will readily recall my visit to THE TIMES sanctum in quest of information about a new route to the grandest sight ever looked upon by man, the Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

During my sojourn in Los Angeles was told a new route had been published in your paper, but the date of publication and the point from which it led, my informant could not recollect, hence my fruitless visit to your office. Failing to get the desired information in Los Angeles I wrote both to Flagstaff and Williams. In due time the answers came, and the one from Flagstaff satisfied me that Williams was the best and most desirable point from which to make the trip. I was confirmed in this impression by an interview with Dr. John R. Haynes of your city, after he returned from his recent visit to the canyon with Maj. Powell and his party of geologists. The distance from Flagstaff is about eighty miles, and it takes two hard days' travel to make it. The distance from Williams is a little over sixty from Williams is a little over sixty miles, and can readily be made in thirteen hours. Miss Bonner and myself left Los Angeles October 3 and reached Williams the next day, and remained some hours here in order to assure ourselves that the second will our second some hours here in order to assure ourselves that the second s solves that the new route would give us good views of the canyon as well as superior facilities of reaching it. We left about 10 o'clock on Monday, October 5, and in five hours we reached a cosy, sheltered spot called Cataract Glen, thirty-two miles from Williams. There we rested the first night in a good tent, with good mattresses for beds, and plenty of new blankets for covering.

We started about 9 o'clock the next morning and a little after 4 o'clock p. m. we were on the banks of the can-yon—and such a sight lay before us: It was grander and more sublime in mag-nitude than we expected to find it, and we had read every published account we could find on the subject. I can realize now the probability of the old story that has been so often told of the two Englishmen who had heard of the grand sight, and determined to walk the whole distance to see it them-selves. When the inconceivable grand-eur of the scene burst upon them they were so overcome that one of them ex-claimed, "I'll be d—d!" and the other burst into tears.

Plain-spoken Curtain Lecture to Cali-fornia Judges. [San Francisco Examiner. Oct. 11.]

We shall not insult the Supreme Gourt by assuming that there is any doubt of its position in the war against the boodlers. Happily the remarks of Chief Justice Beatty during the hearing of the Haymond case have practically settled that point. But there is a deriving the fact, that there was generally on denying the fact that there was general disappointment at the tailure of the court to render a decision before it left San Francisco. If the case of Gannon—Chute's old political partner, by the way—settled the question of the right of a witness to challenge the legality of a grand jury as Judge Beatty rigative of a grand jury, as Judge Beatty said that it did, why should there have been any delay in making an official declaration to that effect?

Probably the delay is due merely to the dignified deliberation which is a tradition of Supreme Courts. But we trust that in this case the court may let dignity give way for once to the public interests. The work of the grand jury is crippled now from the re-fusal of witnesses to obey its processes. The attack on crime has come almost to a standstill. Meanwhile public indig-nation is steadily growing hotter, and the judiciary is becoming the subject of remarks that are not pleasant for its friends to hear.

It is often said that judges should not be influenced in the slightest degree by public opinion. It is true that they should not be so influenced against their own convictions of right. but the their own convictions of right. but the principles on which the government of California is founded contemplate a steady check by public opinion upon abuses of judicial power. The object of making Justices of the Supreme Court come before the people for election every twelve years and Judges of the Superior Court every six years is to enable the voters to pronounce judgment upon the manner in which they enable the voters to pronounce judgment upon the manner in which they have preformed their duties. If they have been the tools of corporations and bosses—if they have strained the law in the interest of powerful criminals—it is the right and duty of the people under the Constitution of the State to punish them for their unfaithfulness.

In accordance with this principle the fate of Judge Murphy is already settled. He will continue to occupy for a time the place be has disgraced, but even if "But they can't have friend pay good ransom."

Even a man of very ordinary principle who has reached the bench of the Supreme Court may well feel that it would be a poor bargain for him to exchange his honor and his future for the vulgar advantages which might influence a supervisor or deputy assessor. The court is illuminated by the full blaze of a unanimous public assessor. The court is illuminated by the full blaze of a unanimous public opinion, and a failure to do its duty now would be as inconsistent with common sense as with good morals.

Laloo is a native, or rather a native-and-a-half, of Hindostan, where he-orshe was born twenty years ago in the otherwise celebrated village of Oovon, Oudh. Laloo was born a twin, but un-fortunately for him his twin sister had grown from his breastbone. More correctly, she had attached herself to him at that part of his anatomy, and seemed to have plunged head-first into her brother's body, for dangling from his chest was only a baby girl's body and four limbs. Her body was provided with a foetal heart and pulse, and performed all its proper functions itself.

Physical sensations of heat and cold and nervous experiences are common to both but many of the are common to both, but many of the most important vital functions are as-serted to be separate. Though with no intelligence seemingly of her own, the headless sister can twist and squirm, and when Laloo's brain conceives the idea of having the little one move, there is no connecting nerve to telegraph the injunction, and Laloo must perforce lift the limbs with his own hands.

Ghastly as it is to those who behold with pitying eyes, Laloo has come to feel little concern for his terrible condition. He walks about, reclines, and smokes cigarettes inveterately; and so great a contempt does familiarity.

You know, as everybody knows, when you have come to the little closely hedged, tiled houses, where the open highway has merged into a long, picturesque though humble street, that were you to remain in Stratford for a month's time there could be only just the half dozen places immediately identified with Shakspeare to visit—the house where he was born, the vacant site of the house where he lived at New Place, the church where he is buried. New Place, the church where he is buried Ann Hathaway's cottage, and the memorial fountain and theater. An accient verger with snow white hair is shuffling along the leaf strewn pavement. He pauses, and with a loud jangling of his huge keys he unlocks the wicket, then the wide, low oaken doors, and is shortly lost among the shadows within. You steal softly after him. Somewhere in the dim place the old man is whistling. in the dim place the old man is whistlin as if for company, in low tones as occomes an old, old man, but somehow it checks your impulse to enter, and you wander around and around the shadowy shrine, halting at last next the side of the chancel hadting at last next the side of the chancel nearest where you know that Shakespeare lies. A few steps among the graves beneath huge elms bring you to the river side, for the Avon he loved laves the sides of the churchyard walls. It is so still and silent here you feel that the very spirit of the stream is hushed in obeisance and reverence for the spot its waters are passing. On the farther side are long, lonesome meadows. You turn, pass through the churchyard, and saunter along in the quiet of Mill Lane. At its end is a ramshackle mill, nobody knows how many centuries old. The splash of the wheel has a drowsy sound. A footpath leads to a mossy wooden bridge. You cross this, take to the meadows, with the river, church and town to your left, and cross the fields to Shottery. Here is a typical English village, crisscrossed with stone walls, and hedges cut in high box patterns, and brown with thatched poofs, so old that birds and mice use them for nests, while wild field flowers and weeds grow luxuriously upon them, Instinctively you approach the oldest and quaintest structure in Shottery. But you have not beard what was said. The old-lady's words have blended with the autumn voices without. Back across the Avon over the great stone bridge, and a few minutes' walk brings you to humble Henley street. There is still the seeming of dreamfolk walking about in the soft autumn air. There are about in the soft autumn air. There are few of them, and they seem either very old or very young, quaint old men and gran-dams ruddy of face and white of hair, who seem to have stepped out of the olden times to look around their former haunts times to look around their former haunts for a little, and very quiet children with demure old ways. You wonder if the influence of so surpassing a shrine goes this far among Stratford dwellers, or whether it is the glamour of your own fancy. This, as you stand before the birthplace of Shakespeare—a spruce enough structure—since its "restoration," with gabled porch, an Elizabethan window in the next story, and a peaked dormer window outjutting from the steep pitched roof above—all with a pretty garden at the sides and back. It seems a long time before the jangling bell is answered.

It seems a long time before the janging bell is answered.

Finally another beaming old lady appears and you follow her silently within. There is very little to see; incommunicable things to feel. There are two rooms below and two above. One of the latter is a sort of museum, and you find little interest here. In the other the bard was born. Which fact thrills you most nowerfully— Which fact thrills you most powerfully-that here first saw the light of day the that here lirst saw the light of day the great revealer of humanity to men, or that the once white wall is black with the names of the great and mighty of all lands and climes who have come and reverently left these signs of tribute to what was so immortally revealed!

It is as though one had for the first time one into wondrous communion with them all, and it is now more than ever a dream, as you turn from the spot and by and by awaken to the consciousness that you are but one of a horde of pilgrims, and are again passing beneath the portal of Holy Trinity Church

Trinity Church. Yet how little is there for simply the eyes to look upon— the interior of a modest church of the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth centuries, cruciform, with central tower and spire, and aisles to the nave only; a narrow chancel inclining paws, with curiously carved misereres beneath, a west window representing the twelve apostles and our Lord's baptism; a clerestory beautifully imposed on the arches below; a north charcel window, the city of Americans, illustrating from. "As gift of Americans, illustrating from "As You Like It" the Seven Ages of Man; a few ancient sedilia or priests' seats; an entablature of stone, in which is set the painted stone bust of a pleasant faced man, with twirled mustachois and slight, pointed beard, and below a grave, with four lines of inscriptive supplication that the dust and boars because the lines of the stone of the the dust and bones beneath shall never be disturbed by mortal man. This is all. Yet every day of every year men and women in increasing numbers come from the earth's remotest bounds to stand beside this silent but never voiceless tomb.

The day passes and the shadows lengthen among the limes. You shrink into a coramong the limes. You shrink into a corner beneath protecting pillar, and see, still as in a dream, the motley throng, from peasant to prince, come and go, come and go, as if the great world heart pushed is strongest, warmest, most unfaltering pulsation here. The evening descends, and the last soft footfall has recrossed the worn stone threshold and passed like a whisper over the wind strewn lime leaves beyond. FISHING FOR FUN.

A "Realistic Critic of the Howells School Couldn't Understand It."
[Maurice Thompson in America.]
In the fastnesses of Sand Mountain I once upon a time found a good bass stream, and for a happy sennight was perhaps the best contented angler in the world. I was on my way to Bay St. Louis, that gem of the Gulf coast, and had "stopped over" to test the veracity of a fisherman friend upon whose word

What I have on the nib of my pen, which is the word in the stream of the nib of my pen, making the very ink itch to be made into words, is the recollection of the into words, is the reconcertion of the Sand Mountain critic. He was a genuine mountaineer, albeit he had at an early period in his life been the editor of a small country paper, and in all his features, his build and his bearings, he showed that he was a "sand-lapper," by which I mean that he was what to the mountains a "cracker" is to the pine woods of the "low country"—in a word, he was a native of Sand

Mountain to the manner born.

Six feet tall was Spivy Sims and as bony as a hickory shad in August; he had a face like Lincola's, sad, wise, hurorous, inscrutable, and he wore the thin chin beard of Brother Jonathan.

He dwelt seven miles, as the crow flies,

The way by which I came to kno that he was a critic and a realist, was short and straight. He came up behind me at a moment when I had on a four-out of the water about three cubits every five seconds in spite of all I could do, and was gradually working its way toward the bushy top of a tree that had fallen into the stream. Every angler will understand what a point of life this was for a dry, matter-of-fact, unromantic voice to hit my ear with:

"Bull, fellow, pull; pull 'im right in!
Yank 'im right out! Let go er that air switch an 'grab yer line! Ain't ye got ery striffin or common sens in!

Of course, not dreaming that any human being was within a league of me, that veice made me turn my head, and what lese could happen but a five-foot leap by the bass and a break away? You always lose the finest fish. I made remarks then and there to spirty Sims-remarks not complimentary to him— and he chuckled complacently.

"Little feller," said he, "ef I take ye by yer heels an' wrap ye eroun' thet tree ther erbout seventeen times, ye'll know who I am."

It was my turn now to smile and be complacent and amiable, seeing how tall and broad and bony he was. We made friends at once, even before we knew each others' names, and I went to have dinner with him at his cabin.
I have said that he was a critic of the same school with Mr. Howells, and I now effer to prove it.

A Southern Husband Stands Up for His Pretty Wife.

IN A LITTLE WHILE

In a little while, when I shall lie
With my face upturned to the bending sky,
I shall not hear the wind and rain
Beatting against the window pane,
I shall not sit as I sit tonight;
And watch the changeful embers bright,
And sigh as I think of the fading years,
And the cherjshed hopes that were drowned tears.

In a little while, when the grass shall wave it's plumy length o'er my lonely grave; When the sun shall rise, and the sun shall shall not not will murmur a fond regret— Then I shall not hear the wild birds' song, Nor heed the hum of the busy throng Who pass me by as I lie at rest, With tired hands folded over my breast,

In a little while, when life is done, And I stand before the great white throne, Whose radiance blinds my poor, weak sight As darkness yields to the morning light— Will rest come then to heart and brain, And case quick follow on haunting pain— Shall I know at last in my quiet bed Rest only comes to the shadowy dead?

I shall not heed when the coffin lid is closed, and the form within is hid from the careless gaze of the careless Who idly chatter in accents loud. I shall not heed the sode that ye Between my face and the summer sk I shall only know that tomorrow's su Wakes me no more. Life's work is done.

It is well known that American actors are exceedingly fond of New York, while they like other places in varying degrees, down to the "one night stands," which they do not like at all. The reasons are obvious, but a new illustration may be found in an incident of Miss Rose Cogh-Ian's tour of some of the small towns of Pennsylvania. In "Peg Woffington" Miss Coghlan introduces a minuet, and she has an orchestral score specially prepared for it. It is the custom when the company is traveling to send this ahead, so that the orchestra of the theater can rehearse it. In a certain one night stand "he advance agent approached the manager on this subject and asked if the orchestra could be called together.

"Well, the fact is," replied the manager, "we haven't got an orchestra." "No orchestra!

"No, only a 'pianoist.' What was more, the manager did not think that an orchestra could be had in the town. The advance agent telegraphed back to the town where the company was for instructions. After much consultation it was decided that a piano score must be made from the already existing orchestra score. The leader of the or-chestra of the theater agreed to try his best to make this new score. It was a large labor for him, as he was not used to such work, and he staid at the theater for two hours after the performance to do it. Then it was sent forward in triumph to the "pianoist," and the crowning calamity was discovered—the "piano-ist" was blind. In the end a violinist was found who made some attempt at playing the music, and the advance agent began a more thorough system of investigation into the resources of the theater visited.— New York Tribune.

Francis Joseph and Eugenle At this moment two historic and royal personages who are crossing the stage of the world seem to be stamped by the fatal the world seem to be stamped by the fatal-ity of the ancients. They are like two evo-cations of Æschylus or Euripides. They suggest Œdipus and Jocasta. One is the Emperor Francis Joseph, the other the Empress Eugenie. On both a crushing fatality seems to rest.

One, mounted on the throne, saw herself precipitated from it in the midst of its greatess luster. Struck to the heart by those mortal blows, Reichshofen, Spiche-ren, Sedan, she saw her husband led away a prisoner after having surrendered his arm to the victor. She saw her palace invaded by the threatening mob, and deserted by the flood of courriers she was accompanied to her exile only by that American citizen, by that Thomas W. Evans, who alone was by that Thomas W. Evans, who alone was faithful in misfortune. She saw her husband, prostrated by pain and adversity, the inglorious in that exile; and finally her son, her only son, on whose head centered all her pride, all her hope, perished in a barbarous and lone-some land, far from Europe, far from all that could cast a last ray on his premature. grave. And yet she lives, she goes about, she talks, she revisits Paris, she goes to see its monuments, she even enters that Palace of Industry which she inaugurated, and which even years ago was looked upon as a Babylonian dream, and she passes, an incarnation of fatality, under the astonished eyes of the people who gaze upor

The other is Francis Joseph. He ascend ed the throne amid the noise and trepida-tion of a fearful storm. He successively received at the heart those triple poniard thrusts Magenta, Solferino, Sadowa. He sigued, howling with rage, that treaty of Prague which snatched from his brow the German imperial crown; then, amid the gloomy solitude which made his domestic hearth a desert, he learned the mysterious catastrophe which deprived him of his only son, the heir of his crown, the only future and the supreme hope of the empire.—De Blowitz in Harper's.

An Old Prophet's Warning.

April 23, Good Friday and St. George's Day.

June 24, Corpus Christi and St. John's Day.

When I read of new railroads and other improvements being made in Palestine—when the telegraph tells me that they are putting in an electric light plant and a Holly water works system at Jerusalem—unconsciously my mind reverts to the odd combination above set forth. It is the prediction of Nostradamus, a celebrated physician and astrologer of France, who died in 1566, aged sixty years. His prediction was made in Latin, over 300 years ago, and declared that the end of the world would come in the year in which Good Friday came on St. George's Day, Faster on St. Mark's Day and Corpus Christi on St. John's Day. In the year 1886 occurred for the first time that odd combination of holy days. But still the world stands, or rather floats. But may not that year really have been the "beginning of the end."

The signs clearly indicate that some great change is about to take place. All thoughtful observers declare that a quarter of a century will see the downfall of all the old monarchies of Europe. Communism, nihilism and anarchy are bubbling to the surface all over the world. A single decade is likely to see the British empire dissolved, her landed estates divided and her church property confiscated. Turkish dominition in Europe is on the wane, and the Jews are repeopling Palestine.

A Georgia Snake Story.

A Georgia Snake Story.

There is a story going the rounds down in Georgia that the other day one of three ladies, while crossing a road, accidentally stepped on a snake. The serpent coiled itself tightly around the lady's ankle and the effect was electrical. His snakeship had hopped on a dynamo without knowing it. The lady turned on the power, and after describing two or three sharply elongated circles with her heel in midair, the snake, unable to stand the pressure, relaxed his grip and sniled back to earth, and fell near lady No. 2. He rather liked the fun and immediately hitched onto No. 2 in the same manner. The curtain was rung up, and the fun began without delay. Sizz went the lightning pedal violently, the fun and immediately bitched onto No. 2 in the same manner. The curtain was rung up, and the fun began without delay. Sizz went the lightning pedal violently, with an engine lever motion, and swash went his snakeship through the air. Unable to hold on, he turned loose, and dropped at the feet of No. 3. Quick as thought he tackled the next dynamo, with the same resuit.

Here it occurred for the first time to the gallant little snake that he was in Georgia

Here it occurred for the first time to the gallant little snake that he was in Georgia and that Georgia girls were electrical, and that Georgia people are never-so happy as when they can tell a lie on a snake, and that about the best thing he could do just then was to escape to the woods before he was sized up and examined carefully for rattles. After thanking the ladies for the entertainment he made his powered sought. entertainment he made his bow and sought the timber. This is the gist of this Georgia story, with many of the details omitted.— Nushville American.

How the Colorado Desert Was Formed. How the Colorado Desert Was Formed.
Everybody knows, without looking at the map, how Lower California runs south from the Pacific coast like a sort of tail, separated from the United States—for it is a part of Mexico, as some people are not aware—by a long arm of the sea called the Gulf of California. Once upon a time the gulf extended in a northward direction 300 miles beyond its present inland limit. Into this northerly extension the great Colorado river emptied millious of tons of detritus river emptied millions of tons of detritus annually, until the deposit accumulated in quantity sufficient to shut off the upper quantity summent to saut out the upper part of the gulf, which was thus trans-formed into a lake. To begin with, of course it was a salt lake, but it gradually became fresh through the influx of water from the Colorado. Thereupon fresh water fishes, mollusks and other creatures not of the brine were developed in it, and in this way it happens that the dry bottom today is covered with their fossil remains.— Washington Star.

A Sketch of the Scotch Prophet.

There was a great function at the Wal-lace monument, near Stirling, Saturday, when there was a large gathering of Scotchmen to hear Professor Masson's Scotchmen to hear Professor Masson's speech at the uncovering of a bust of Carlyle. It is rather a curious idea of the canny Scots that of making a hall of their dead on the craggy peak that seems to guard the entrance to the Highlands, and from which, you can see goodness knows how many battlefields. Besides the half mythical Wallace, there are looking down on these fields of glory effigies of Robert Bruce. John Kong Carlot Masson Republication of the second seems of the second se on these fields of glory efficies of Robert Bruce, John Knox, George Buchanan, Adam Smith, James Watt, Robert Burns, Sir Walter Scott, Tannahill, Chalmers, Hugh Miller and Dr. Livingstone. So that it may with reason be called a national (and windy) Valhalia.

To my mind the gem of Professor Masson's speech was his personal description of the prophet. The newspaper paragraphist, he said, usually figured him as "an eccentric, absentminded and feeblebodied digentleman," who went about mutterold gentleman," who went about muttering, "Ech sirs," "O mon," "Na, na," "Dinna, dinna," etc. But Professor Masson describes him in his prime as a tall, spare, formidable looking man, six feet in height, and his "habitual vocabulary was best Section at all, but revealed not Scottish at all, but very choice and even stately English. If you studied his intonation, however, you had him at once. He moved among the Londoners for nearly fifty years an unabashed Annandale man." And he made a very true and faithful-friend of Professor Masson.—London Globe.

Nearly three-fourths of the men who have been chosen by the people for the great office of the nation are men who were early familiar with wooded hills and cultivated fields—for example, Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, Hamlin, Greley, Tilden, Cleveland, Harrison, Hayes, Blaine and many others almost equally conspicuous in current events or living memory. Among journalists, Henry Watterson spent his early life in rural Kentucky, and Murat Halstead was born and lived on a farm in Ohio. W. H. Vanderbilt was born in a small New Jersey town, and early engaged in the business of ship chandlery; Russell Sage was born in a New York village; Jay Gould spent his early years on his father's farm in New York state. Ingersoil first saw light in a country town in New York: Talmage in a New Jersey village and David Swing, though born in Cincinnati, passed his boyhood on an Ohio farm. Whittier and Howells spent their youth in villages, the former dividing his farm. FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

OFFICE OF THE TIMES,
The ANGELES, Oct. 13, 1891.
The late peaches are now fairly in the market, and at prices a good deal more satisfactory to the ambitious housewife than to the grower. The crop is not unusually large, though late Canwiczia and Salvan. large, though late Criwfords and Salway peaches and some not so well-known varieties have produced a fair, crop. But a heavy crop in the East, the much smaller demand for California dried peaches and the lessened demand for the same fruit canned, all combine to hold down the price of the free fruit, which is now obtainable canned, all combine to hold down the price of the fresh fruit, which is now obtainable at 1 cent for fair average for canning to 2½ cents for the ripest and best selected, fit "to set before the king." The flig product is quietly and slowly, but none the less surely pushing forward to a better recognized position. Flys seem to hold their own this season rather better than any of the other deciduous fruits. The demand for drying, crystallizing and jamming and for the table seems to besumicent to absorb the crop at fairly remunerative prices; and the fig crop of recognized varieties and from nece which have been well cared for, promises to be rather unexpectedly remunerative.

The tomato crop in this section promises

pectedly remunerative.

The tomato crop in this section promises to be rather short, owing to the intense heat of August and September. In the Cahuenga and Eagle Rock districts good yields are only obtained on low, wet ground. There is a fair crop in the Vernon district. Canners are paying $8 a ton and anticipate some difficulty in securing enough supplies to keep running for a season of the usual length. The result is that the price of canned tomatoes holds up better than that of any other product canned in this section, and higher figures may be looked for this winter.

The local markets today presented few new features. Dairy products, poultry and eggs are in fair demand, and quotations are the same as on Monday. There is considerable movement in potatoes and onloss, and prices have an upward tendency.

Dried fruits are unchanged. Many producers and growers believe that the present low prices are bed-rock figures, and that any change will be an advance.

The new crop of walauts promises to be a large one, and prices have dropped about 1 cent below recent rates.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The stock market today was quiet.

today was quiet. The opening prices were only slightly changed from the close of last evening. Sugar, Rock Island. Louisville. Chicago Gas and Atchison soon advanced. The rapidity of the upward movement, however, was a warning that the pace was too fast, and covering operations went on slower after that time, duliness again become ing prominent. The close was quiet and firm at only slight fractional advances over the first prices. Government bonds were steady.
